Peashooter is a recurring character in the Plants vs. Zombies series. Peashooter acts as the player's first defensive line against zombies and is often the first plant the player unlocks. Starting with Plants vs. Zombies 3, Peashooter has appeared in every game in the Plants vs. Zombies series. Origin Like most other pea-shooting plants, Peashooter is based on the pea plant (Pisum sativum). The term peashooter is commonly used to refer to a toy version of a blowgun, or as a slang for small or low-caliber firearms, referring to how weak he is in Plants vs. Zombies games (excluding Plants vs. Zombies: Garden Warfare series). The name also refers to the fact that Peashooter literally shoots peas. History Plants vs Zombies Main article: Peashooter (PvZ) In the original Plants vs Zombies game, as well as all Chinese spin-off games based on it, Peashooter is the first plant achieved by starting the game. He attacks zombies by shooting peas down his lane. He's the only regular long-range offensive facility available until Snow Pea is unlocked after beating level 1-6. He is the first Peashooting plant introduced, followed by plants such as Snow Pea and Repeater. Plants vs. Zombies Adventures (Archived Content) Main article: Peashooter (PvZA) Peashooter made a return in PopCap's fateful Facebook game Plants vs. Zombies Adventures, where he retained his role as the player's first form of offense the player receives. Due to the 3-dimensional style of the tower defense featured in Plants vs. Zombies Adventures, Peashooter no longer attacks in a straight line down a row, instead he is able to attack zombies one by one in a 5x5 area around himself. He has two VIP variants based on him, Sweet Pea and Beeshooter. Plants vs. Zombies 2 Main article: Peashooter (PvZ2) In Plants vs. Zombies 2 is Peashooter again the first plant available in the player's seed arsenal, achieved before the first level starts. He is the only regular offensive facility available until cabbage desk is unlocked after beating Player's House - Day 5. He is a member of the Appease-mint family, 150 more DPS when they are on the pitch and his Plant Food effect has him wear a helmet helmet to Gatling Pea and fire an outbreak of 60 peas. Garden Warfare series Main Article: Peashooter (PvZ: GW) Peashooter puts a prominent role in the Garden Warfare series of shooters, in which he acts as a frontline attack, or a hit and run attacker, dealing with heavy splash injuries with his primary weapon Pea Cannon. As with the other playable classes in the Garden Warfare series, he has many character variants based on him, each of which has its own characteristics that distinguish them from the standard base character. Plants vs. Zombies: All Stars (China only) (Archive content) Main article: Pea line Peashooter appeared in the Chinese-exclusive tour-based game Plants vs. Zombies: All Stars, where he was the first plant in the Pea line. He developed into Repeater and then to Gatling Pea. He attacked by shooting a tease at an enemy per turn. His active ability was Pea Barrage, which amounted to a lot of damage to the nearest enemy in his lane. His soulmates were members of the Nut line for an injury boost, the bomb line for a critical chance boost, and Charm and Pepper lines for an injury boost. The Peashooter and Pea line as a whole also served as the flagship plant line for Brave type plants and is the first line the player unlocks in the game. Plants vs. Zombies Heroes Main article: Peashooter (PvZH) Peashooter also appears in the turn-based mobile card game Plants vs. Zombies Heroes, where he emerges as the basic 1/1 representative of the Mega-Grow class, more specifically representing the Pea tribe. Peashooter also has a plant hero based on him, Green Shadow, whose specialty increases the strength of plant warriors and synergies with plants in the Pea Tribe. Plants vs. Zombies: Battle for Neighborville Main article: Peashooter (PvZ: BfN) Peashooter appears again in third-person shooter Plants vs. Zombies: Battle for Neighborville. He is an Attack class specializing in combat versatility and explosive damage, either via his primary weapon or his Chili Bean Bomb capability. Unlike in the Garden Warfare series, Peashooter no longer has any character variants, but instead has a large number of character upgrades, some of which provide capabilities to Peashooter's primary weapons and abilities. Plants vs. Zombies 3 Main article: Peashooter (PvZ3) Peashooter's last appearance in Plants vs. Zombies 3, where he reprises his role as a straight-shooting plant that is unlocked in the first level of the game. He also serves as the flagship plant for Shooter type plants. Peashooter also serves as the protagonist of the story of the game, appearing alongside other plants such as Sunflower, Wall-Nut and Bonk Choy. This is the first time in the series where Peashooter gets a personality and dialogue. Gallery Plants vs. Zombies Wiki has a gallery for Peashooter. Visit this page to see it. Trivia Han, along with Sunflower, Wall-nut, and Potato Mine are shown as mascots in the series, appearing in all Plants vs Zombies games, as well as various promotional materials and goods. Many depictions of Peashooter falsely depict it having the back blades of a Repeater, such as on the machine in Slot Machine and many other promotions for the game. He resembles Bellsprout from the Pokémon series, and Deku Scrubs from The Legend of Zelda Series. He and Threeppeater are the only plants that are plant pieces in Plants vs. Zombies Risk. Peashooter makes a cameo in the Bejeweled Blitz, as a tournament PopCap Friend plays with scores of 20000000. A statue of a Peashooter appears as a cameo in a Battlefield 4 map called Dawnbreaker. It is believed that this is a response to the Garden Warfare trailer, which paid tributes to various trailers from first-person shooters, mainly Battlefield 3 and Call of Duty: Modern Warfare 3.
